EBP (formerly EDR Group) is currently working on the nation's first statewide emerging transportation technology plan for the Texas Department of Transportation.

As part of a state-of-the-practice review, EBP reviewed and analyzed existing plans and studies in the state as well as national reports and best practices from several peer state agencies. The firm developed a summary report documenting the State's recent and on-going initiatives to other agency and national best practice publications. In addition to the plan review, EBP is helping to prepare a comprehensive plan document that will integrate the various state, rural/regional, and local plans, programs and policy efforts with a set of implementation strategies and prioritization criteria for emerging modes.
